

Editorial :

It is indeed a blessing for us (Royal Family) that we are once again here gifted with another new session 2023-2024. We give our gratitude to our Heavenly Father for the same. As school have resumed its full schedule since mid-February, we the editorial of this Messenger warmly welcome all the new members (teachers/students/parents/staff) that you are an addition of the blessings we've prayed for. We also wish each and every reader a very Happy New year. Looking forward to having a memorable learning experience together here in the School, we invite all, big and small to be co-operative, caring, loving, understanding keeping in mind we respect each other at all times. May this Messenger also serve as a platform for the same, while exploring our thoughts, ideas, adventures, our conscience, aims and vision, and test ourselves to the optimal while always being optimist simultaneously. We believe this session's team is in great shape and is capable of delivering positive productive sustainable education that our present times desperately needs. Let's continue to keep contributing and keep exploring as we take every step forward. Wishing everyone the very best in all you do and have a great day ahead. Thank you.

OUTGOING (CLASS OF 2023-2024)OUR FAREWELL MESSAGE

It's a blessing for us to have this opportunity to give a farewell message for our beloved teachers and students. As days passed by, we have reached our final journey of school life here as we completed our HSLC examination. Our heart is heavy knowing we will now be apart. The love and the care we received will forever remain in our hearts. We thank you dear teachers and students for all that you have done for our batch. Let the family relationship we've built remain ever strong throughout our lifetime. We give my highest respect to our Headmistress and our teachers for giving us all you have. We are indeed very grateful to all for the caring and best guidance and effort you put in for us. We understood the care we received all along though we don't thank you often enough. We hope this is not considered too late. We are confident that the little seeds you've planted in us will surely be a blessing someday for our surrounding wherever we may go. Always love for our school in our hearts. Thank you and goodbye my family.

BITTER GOOSEBERRIES

Once there was a snake and he lived in a gooseberries bush, and every night he turn into a handsome prince. Now there is nothing extraordinary about this, it happens all the time especially in Burma, where everyone is handsome anyway. But a story can't success unless there is a woman in it, so there was also a woman who lived in a little house with orchids hanging in the varandah. The woman has three daughter called Ma Ngi, Ma Lat and Ma Nge, and Ma Nge was the youngest, nicest and the most beautiful of them all. One day the mother of Ma Nge had to go to the forest to pluck some gooseberries. And the women took her basket along. And just as she was starting to pluck some gooseberries, the snake that live in the bush hiss at her as much as to say 'be off'. This was the snake who was a prince by night, and now of course it was broad day light. Burmese lady aren't afraid of snakes. More over the snake recalled that this was the mothers of the three daughters and he had a fondness in her daughter, so he changed his mind about sending the women away. And he waited for her to speak first because she was a woman, and women are remarkable for their business capacity. Then the woman said 'If you like any oldest daughter Ma Ngi give me gooseberries'. Women always want something: it's a part of their business philosophy. But the snake say 'No' because he know that Ma Ngi had a bad temper, but she give her one gooseberries. Then the women again said 'If you like my second daughter give me another gooseberries'. The prince knew that Ma Lat had a squint eye, but he give her another gooseberries because he doesn't want to hurt anyone's feeling. Then the women say 'If you like my youngest daughter give me another gooseberries'. At that the snake trembled so violently that every gooseberry fell of the bush because he knows that Ma Nge was the youngest and the most beautiful of them all. Then as night came the snake became a prince and the woman got him married with her youngest daughter.

Moral: No matter how remarkable a women business capacities is, she is no match for a man.

MY GREATEST HEROES

My parents are my greatest heroes, they have been there from the start. They gave me everything I needed. To say I lacked would be a lie. Thank you for teaching me and for being patient through it all.

When I make mistakes, they corrected me with love, I will try my best not to disappoint them. I feel blessed to have parents like them in my life. Without them I wouldn't be the person that I am today. They taught me how to live and survive in this world.

Thank you for loving me, for taking care of me and for being the light by my side always. Although you may not say in words, your actions always remind me of your love for me and make me feel loved. I know 'thank you' is not enough but I hope you will understand how grateful I am to you. I love you with all my heart, you will forever be my friend and love me unconditionally till the end.
